Transfer of rights:

Note for doctoral candidates who are planning a publication or an application for an extension of the publication deadline:

The following granting of rights to TU Darmstadt shall not apply if proof of publication in printed form is provided within the prescribed period and shall also not apply as long as the possibly extended period for publication pursuant to § 20 para. 2 or 3 has not yet expired.

However, if you do not meet the submission deadline/publication deadline, the following granting of rights will take effect. In this case, TU Darmstadt will publish the electronic copy of your approved dissertation deposited by you with the ULB on a server that is not accessible to the public until then via TUpriints in order to prevent the doctorate from failing (§ 20 para. 4 and 7 PO/AT).

In this respect, you must grant these rights as a precautionary measure when uploading the electronic version of your dissertation to the ULB server, which is not accessible to the public.

I confirm that I am authorized to dispose of the copyright rights to my work and that I not made any contrary dispositions to date. I declare that the publication of the work does not infringe any third-party rights and indemnify the Technische Universität Darmstadt against any third-party claims.

I hereby grant the Technische Universität Darmstadt the right to use the version of the dissertation approved for publication

- electronically for an unlimited period and irrevocably on its own servers and make it accessible via the international data networks (granting of the simple right of use, unlimited in time and space);
- the German National Library and to library partner institutions that are also authorized to store the data permanently;
- to produce individual complete copies with the aid of a print-on-demand service for the user for use in accordance with §53 UrhG;
- other formats if this is necessary for use or archiving;
- to freely pass on the metadata* of the dissertation to databases or directories.

* Metadata refers to the bibliographic data (author, title, names of reviewers, subject area, etc.) and abstract.
